

ENSURING SEXUAL AND REPRODUCTIVE HEALTH AND RIGHTS OF WOMEN AND GIRLS AFFECTED BY CONFLICT

Conflict and crisis have dire consequences on women and girls' sexual and reproductive health and rights. Women and girls affected by conflict face increased risks of sexual violence and urgently need comprehensive sexual and reproductive healthcare. Addressing the lack of sexual and reproductive health information and services in these settings using a human rights-based approach is central not only to an effective humanitarian response but also to fulfilling fundamental human rights obligations.
